The Dying Patient in Psychotherapy joy Schorevien 2020-04-22 The Dying Patient in Psychotherapy is a powerful account of life and death within a psychotherapeutic relationship. The narrative traces one man’s journey in psychotherapy and that of the analyst who accompanies him. The full-length description of an analysis demonstrates the developmental path of an erotic transference from its origins in infancy, through fantasies of sex and violence to mature erotic intimacy. The countertransference is considered with exceptional honesty as the analysis intensifies following the diagnosis of a life-threatening illness. A series of dreams rich in symbolic imagery traces the psychological situation as death approaches. A precursor to Schorevien’s acclaimed book Boarding School Syndrome, the single-case study demonstrates the enduring impact of early boarding. This second edition also includes an updated literature review, and new material regarding training and supervision, making it a valuable resource for training institutions. The Dying Patient in Psychotherapy will be essential reading for psychoanalysts, psychotherapists, counsellors, arts therapists and all professionals working with the dying. The poignant story will also engage the general reader, curious about the process of psychotherapy.

The Resurrection of the Son of God: Nicholas Thomas Wright 2003 Why did Christianity begin, and why did it take the shape it did? To answer this question -- which any historian must face -- renowned New Testament scholar T. N. Wright focuses on the key points: what precisely happened at Easter? What did the early Christians mean when they said that Jesus of Nazareth had been raised from the dead? What can be said today about this belief? This book, third in Wright’s series Christian Origins and the Question of God, is a powerful introduction to the history and nature of the earliest Christian understanding of the resurrection of Jesus. It offers both a fresh look at the resurrection story and a challenging history of Christian beliefs about the afterlife and near-death experiences, the addition of key words and definitions to each chapter, and more. Christopher M. Moreman offers an introduction to afterlife investigations into death in our modern world, and an exploration of our struggles to live well in the ever-present shadow of death. It is not a book with answers; it is an invitation to look at death differently. This book offers fresh and original ideas about death and dying. And it will radically change your understanding of what death is.

Death, the Last God: Anne Geraghty 2014-11-28 Anne Geraghty was a clinical psychologist and psychotherapist when her son, Tim, Guest, author of My Life in Orange died suddenly. Her life ended, she went on a search for her lost son. Where was he? What was he like? Did he live on in some other realm? Or had he fallen into the darkness of oblivion? Her search for Tim became an exploration into the nature of death itself. We do as we have lived. Our lives are not like those of a C12th Dominican or a Zen monk; we cannot, therefore, simply turn to old myths and maps of what happens when we die. We need a new narrative of death that can speak to the deeper parts of our collective unconscious, the workings of the unspoken and the encounters with the unknown, and how our personal experiences of death are integrated into our investigation into human death, and an exploration of our struggles to live well in the ever-present shadow of death. It is not a book with answers; it is an invitation to look at death differently. This book offers fresh and original ideas about death and dying. And it will radically change your understanding of what death is.

Beyond the Threshold: Christopher M. Moreman 2017-09-13 Beyond the Threshold introduces readers to afterlife beliefs and experiences in world religions. This second edition has been updated and revised throughout, including a new chapter on afterlife beliefs and practices in selected African traditions, new research on the afterlife and near-death experiences, the addition of key words and definitions to each chapter, and more. Christopher M. Moreman offers an introduction to afterlife beliefs in ancient cultures, which are essential to understanding the roots of many modern ideas about death. He examines the folklores and doctrines of major world religions such as Taoism, Chinese religious thought, Hinduism, Egyptian and Greek religion, ancient Egyptian and Semitic traditions, such as Judaism. Churches of the first millennium. These traditions and their beliefs about death and afterlife, especially their beliefs about the afterlife, are reflected in the poetry and fiction of the modern world. In this book, Moreman provides an overview of the afterlife in the major world religions and cultures, and the role that afterlife beliefs and experiences have played in shaping our understanding of death.
Transforming Depression: David H. Rosen 2002-05-01 In this groundbreaking book, David H. Rosen, M.D., offers depressed individuals, their families, and therapists a lifesaving course in healing through the soul’s creativity. This is a study about transforming depression and its powerful pull toward suicide into a meaningful alternative. In Transforming Depression, Dr. Rosen applies Carl Jung’s method of active imagination to treating depressed and suicidal individuals. Having dealt with depression and its seemingly paralyzing effects on the individual, this book shows that rich images and symbols that emerge from their struggles, they can turn their despair into a fountain of creative energy. He details the paths of four patients whose work in painting, poetry, dance— and in conjunction with psychotherapy— led them from depression to a more meaningful life. Their dramatic paintings illustrate the text. Part One presents an overview of the biological, psychological, sociological, and spiritual factors involved in the diagnosis of depression. Part Two provides a new therapeutic approach to treating depression, focusing on the symbolic death and rebirth of the ego (ego-death) as an alternative to suicide. Part Three presents in-depth case studies from Dr. Rosen’s practice. Part Four discusses how we can recognize crisis points and how creativity can transform depression. The author pays particular attention to the problem of teen suicide.

Haunted Greece and Rome: D. Fellos 2010-07-22 Stories of ghostly spirits who return to this world to warn of danger, to prophesy, to take revenge, to request proper burial, or to comfort the living fascinated people in ancient times just as they do today in this innovative, interdisciplinary study. The author combines a modern folkloric perspective with literary analysis of ghost stories from classical antiquity to shed new light on the stories’ folk roots. The author begins by examining ancient Greek and Roman beliefs about death and the departed and the various kinds of ghost stories which arose from these beliefs. She then focuses on the longer stories of Plautus, Pliny, and Lucian, which concern haunted houses. Her analysis illuminates the oral and literary transmission and adaptation of folkloric motifs and the development of the ghost story as a literary form. In her concluding chapter, the author also traces the influence of ancient ghost stories on modern ghost story writers, a topic that will interest all readers and scholars of tales of hauntings.

Carl Gustav Jung: Frank McKinney 1997 A biography of the famous psychologist examines Carl Jung’s early career as an admirer of Freud, the bitter argument that made the men rivals, and the development of his highly influential theories.

Spectres of the Self: Ghase McCronin 2007-07-22 Spectres of the Self is a fascinating study of the rich cultures surrounding the experience of seeing ghosts in England from the Reformation to the twentieth century. Shane McCronin examines a vast range of primary and secondary sources, showing how ghosts, apparitions, and hallucinations were imagined, experienced, and debated from the pages of fiction to the case reports of the Society for Psychical Research. By analysing a broad range of themes from telepathy and ghost-hunting to the notion of dreamlike awaking while awake and the question of why ghosts were clothes, Dr McCronin reveals a wealth of fresh material of folkloric interest which has never been explored before.

Environment and Behavior—Robert B. Bechtel 1967-01-01 Unlike many books on the subject, which treat environmental psychology as a branch of psychology only, this comprehensive introduction takes a cross-disciplinary stance. Chapters cover such topics as: environmental engineering; biology; geography; architecture; evolutionary biology; sociology; clinical psychology and gerontology. The author, taking a unified view of human-environment problems, includes many aspects of environmental studies and emphasizes the innovative thinking required to deal with environmental problems.

Mistakes: Terrie Waddell 2006 Mistakes depart from the bulk of screen discourse by unpinning Juniper and Port-Jungian ideas on unconscious processes to popular film and television. This perspective offers a rich insight into the way that various myths infiltrate popular culture. By examining the function of psychological motifs and symbols in cinema and television, Terrie Waddell opens up another way of thinking about how identity can be constructed and disrupted. Multicultural Discourse, Menomen, The Others, The X-Files, Twin Peaks, The Sopranos, Spider, Intimacy and Absolutely Fabulous all lend themselves to this approach. The close analysis of these films/programs are guided by a number of core critiques from trickster and self into the grotesque. The book’s four parts reflect these dominant patterns: Juniper, trickster and the screen’s Manichaeism, self-deception and the undead Redemers, bad, and matricide Excuses of the sad and the same Mistakes gives readers a chance to engage with screen material in an original and subversive way. This study will be of great interest to Juniper analysts and students of film, cultural studies, media, gender studies and analytical psychology.

Death rituals, ideology, and the development of early Mesopotamian kingship—Andrew C. Cohen 2005 At the beginning of Mesopotamia’s Early Dynastic period, the political landscape was dominated by temple administrators, but by the end of the period, rulers whose titles we translate as king assumed control. This book argues that the ritual process of mourning, burying, and venerating dead elites contributed to this change. Part one introduces the rationale for seeing rituals as a scaffolding gives glimpses into the writers’ world. Four appendices are included: two essays by Kirsch, a series of letters between Hilde Kirsch and Jung, and a brief, incisive essay on the Medical Society for Psychotherapy. This revised edition includes primary material that was unavailable when the book was first published, as well as updated footnotes and minor corrections to the translated letters.

Of Mothers and Death—Elizabeth Lamehle 2008

Hyperfeminality—Mike Hockney 2013-07-28 Humanity is a single biological species but has split into two different mental species labelled Mythos and Logos. The Mythos species is driven by emotional stories, not by facts, evidence or rational arguments. Even scientific materialism is a Mythos—the sensory Mythos—which asserts that “rational unobservables”, undetectable by the senses, simply cannot exist. The Enlightenment—the Age of Reason—was when Logos humanity came to the fore. Hyperfeminity is the upsurge of Logos humanity that advocates hypermaterialism. “Old” Humanity, stuck in irrational Mythos past, will become extinct. The future is about the new human race—Hyperfeminity. Do you belong to the Illuminated Ones, the Shining Ones, the Divine Ones, or are you on your knees to some story-book God, an irrational market or irrational devotion to your physical senses? Hyperfeminity is not here to help Old Humanity. It is here to replace it! We are the true human race, that which seeks to claim its rightful prize— divinity.

Love and Death in Psychotherapy—Robert Lamps 2006-06-25 Feelings of love between patients and their therapists have been an endless source of confusion for those involved. An essential reading for all counselling and psychotherapy students and practitioners, this text offers fresh perspectives and advice on how to deal with expressions of love and sexual desires in the course of therapy.

Archetypal Dimensions of the Psyche—Marie-Louise von Franz 1999-02-16 The chief disciple of C. G. Jung, analyst Marie-Louise von Franz uses her vast knowledge of the works and teachings of the great Swiss psychiatrist to explore not only the influence of the Mythos and Logos archetypal forces, but also the role of the shadow in psychological development. This is an investigation of each of the eight Jungian archetypal forces, which express the different archetypes of the human psyche and of the collective unconscious, and which embody humanity’s personal as well as collective identity. She shows that the meaning of life—the realization of our fullest human potential, which Jung called “individuation.” The Major Arcana becomes a map of life, and the hero’s journey becomes something that each individual can relate to one’s personal life. “Sallie Nichols, in her profound investigation of the Tarot has performed an immense service. Her book enriches and helps us to understand the awesome responsibilities laid

Tarot and the Archetypal Journey—Sally Nichols 2019-05-01 This highly innovative work presents a piercing interpretation of the tarot in terms of Jungian psychology. Through analogues to the humanities, mythology, and the graphic arts, the significance of the cards is related to personal growth and what Jung termed “individuation.” The Major Arcana becomes a map of life, and the hero’s journey becomes something that each individual can relate to one’s personal life. “Sally Nichols, in her profound investigation of the Tarot has performed an immense service. Her book enriches and helps us to understand the awesome responsibilities laid upon consciousness. She has done this not in an academic fashion but derived from her own experience of the Tarot and its strangely transparent lights. As a result her book not only lights but quickens life in whoever it touches.” Laurens van der Post
